

BioForum 2010 – jobvector career day

Looking for a job in the area of biotechnology, pharmacy and life science in sufficient and fruitful way is important issue for many people, regardless their qualification and experience.

Regarding that fact, Bio-Forum wants to assist students, PhD students and experienced employees in getting familiar with the specific features of life science and technical science market by organizing jobvector career day. One part of jobvector career day is presentation of job offers from jobvector internet database and the offers given by other BioForum exhibitors and participants. Moreover, jobvector will present some professional instructions and tips how to choose the right job, how to apply for it and how to develop your career.

One of the jobvector career day associated events is the assessment of the CV's of BioForum participants by the professionals representing Kelly Services Poland, the human resources company. Kelly Services representatives will assess CV's, application letters and other documents of the candidates for different positions and jobs and they will help the candidates to highlight important issues and correct poor sections of the documents. Simultaneously, the special forum presenting the opportunities on the specific Polish and Central European biotech market will be held during BioForum.

Agnieszka Salwierz, jobvector representative in Poland said: I consider BioForum as a perfect platform to present our website. BioForum is an event where science meets Central European bio-business and all the initiatives supporting career development in this specific sector should be associated with such an event.

jobvector – the Science career center is the leading career platform to look for professionals and managers with scientific and technical background.

BioForum is not only the trade fair for well known and recognized companies from the biotech sector but also for young energetic people who are entering the challenging path of their career development and associated events will be held at 19-21th of May 2010 in Lodz, Poland.

BioForum Central European Business Forum of Biotechnology & Innovative BioEconomy
